Bachelor of Information Management and Information System

Rotman School of Management, University of Toronto

9/2011 - 12/2011

Exchange Student

RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research aims at deriving insights and strategies to facilitate interactions and transactions among various actors in IT-enabled platforms and markets. In particular, I combine econometric analyses, randomized experiments, survey methods, and machine learning to study the relationships between digital content and engagement behaviors in business pages on social media. In addition, I use mathematical modeling and simulation methods to design theoretically robust and computationally efficient technology artifacts and mechanisms that facilitate economic efficiency and decision making in complex markets.

TEACHING

IDSc 4444 Descriptive and Predictive Analytics, Fall 2016 (Term A)

Instructor Rating: 5.80/6.00; Enrollment: 47

IDSc 4444 Descriptive and Predictive Analytics, Spring 2017 (Term B)

Instructor Rating: 5.70/6.00; Enrollment: 52

Served as Guest Lecturer

Predictive Analytics, Fall 2015, 1 session on RapidMiner Tutorial

Exploratory Data Analytics and Visualization, Fall 2015, 2 sessions on Clustering Analysis

Served as Teaching Assistant

Modeling and Heuristics for Decision Making, Spring 2016

Exploratory Data Analytics and Visualization, Fall 2014/2015

Predictive Analytics, Fall 2014/2015

Business Analytics, Spring 2014/2015

Business Intelligence, Spring 2014

Advanced Business Intelligence, Spring 2014/2015

Information Technology Management, Fall 2013

HONORS AND AWARDS

International Conference on Information Systems (ICIS) Doctoral Consortium Attendee, 2017

PhD Student Teaching Award, Carlson School of Management, 2016-2017

Graduate School Dissertation Fellowship, University of Minnesota, 2017-2018

Best Reviewer Award, Workshop on Information Technologies and Systems (WITS), Dublin, 2016

Graduated with Honors, Tsinghua University, 2013

National Scholarship, Ministry of Education, China, 2010
